The Institution Innovation Council of Sheila Raheja School of Business Management and Research organized a MasterClass Session on Accelerators/ Incubation – Early Stage Entrepreneurs.

The speaker of the session was Mr. Chintan Oza, Founder, Anantam Ecosystems. He explained the students how incubation cells provide resources like funding, mentorship, and networking to help startups grow. He briefed the students on exploring opportunities for early stage entrepreneurs. He also offered insights into the entrepreneurial ecosystems while also offering a unique and insightful opportunity for students to gain inspiration to become accomplished entrepreneurs.

Objectives

- To provide a comprehensive overview about accelerators and incubators.
- To familiarize students with the broader entrepreneurial ecosystem, resources, and the support network available for startups.
- To motivate students to consider entrepreneurial ventures and think critically about how accelerators and incubators can support their own potential startups.

Learning Outcomes

- Students understood the idea of accelerators and incubators and early-stage startups.
- Students gained insights into the broader entrepreneurial ecosystem, including key stakeholders, resources, and how accelerators and incubators fit into the larger startup landscape.
